PASTOR'S CORNER

Unidentified, Chapter Five

“What’s the matter, J.B.? Are you feeling alright?” his Dad asked him over the phone, the sounds of yet another airport providing ample background noise. “Whaddya mean? I’m okay, Dad.” J.B. half-heartedly responded. “You just don’t seem yourself, Bud. Why did you call me on a Saturday morning anyway – aren’t you usually outside with any number of your friends?” “I dunno, Dad. I just wanted to talk to you...to say hi and all that.” “Well, I’m glad you called,” his Dad affirmed. “When will you be home, Dad,” J.B. asked hoping for an earlier than scheduled return. “I’ll be home next Friday, J.B., but you can call me anytime – just like you did this morning. You know that, right?” “Yeah, Dad, I know.” “Listen, J.B., I’ve got to board my plane in a minute or two. Give your Mom and your sisters kisses for me, and tell them I’ll call them later tonight around 7:30, if all goes well. Okay?” “Okay, Dad.” “Thanks, J.B., you’re my right hand. ...I gotta go...I love you.” “I love you too, Dad.” “Good-bye.” “Bye, Dad.”

J.B. heard his sisters galloping down the stairs and into the kitchen. He followed them to the kitchen where he fixed them some frozen waffles and frozen sausage on this Saturday morning. They had put the TV on to their morning shows and were dancing and singing while their brother got them breakfast – J.B. was literally filling in for his Dad. J.B.’s Mom had to work most Saturdays until mid-afternoon, but would be calling any minute now to see how things were going.

After breakfast, J.B. cleaned things up, took the check-in call from his Mom, and delighted that his sisters were going to spend the day in the backyard with their toys and imaginations. He got back to his computer and immediately played the video in slow motion again. What was it he was seeing? “It’s got to be a ship of some sort,” he said to himself. “But,” he argued, “it doesn’t make any noise.” “Of course,” he retorted, “it’s from another world with advanced technology.” “Well,” he thought again, “it is definitely not an animal – no wings, no eyes, no legs or tail.” “What makes it so dark, though,” he asked himself. “Why doesn’t it reflect light? Is it an invisibility shield?” But then he asked himself the questions that actually frightened him, “What do they want with me, with us? Are we in danger?” He shook his head as if to wake himself and quickly went to the window to keep an eye on his sisters. He came to one certain conclusion with all these questions. Staring out the window at his laughing sisters he said aloud, “I wish Dad were home.”

PARISH RETREAT

Several parishes in our diocese are building up the spirituality of their parish by having an annual parish retreat. St. John Fisher Parish is planning to start parish retreats, but we need the help of our parishioners. There will be different positions of leadership for the retreat teams that need to be filled. If you are interested drop a note in the collection basket that states "Parish Retreat" with your name and phone number.

Honor a loved one by placing flowers on the altar. Simply sign up on the chart at the side entrance and then call your florist for delivery. If you have any questions, call Peggy McCarty at 610-264-0307.

IN THE WORDS OF ...

"The Immaculate alone has from God the promise of victory over Satan. She seeks souls that will consecrate themselves entirely to her, that will become in her hands forceful instruments for the defeat of Satan and the spread of God's kingdom."

~St. Maximilian Kolbe
